

Malta's Valletta and Yerevan to become relative states

Malta's capital city Valletta and Armenia's Yerevan are supposed to become relative countries soon. It's supposed that either Malta's deputies or Armenia's deputies will pay visit to the states to get acquainted with the both states, Vera Boyadjyan, the president of Malta's Amrenian Community told "Masin" web site. It's also said that an exhibition of Armenian painters to Malta will be launched. Vera Boyadjyan stated that the community doesn't have any problems as they cooperate with the local authorities. An Armenian school is supposed to be founded in Malta. "Now our children study in British and Maltese schools," she said.
